UCLG-A is the representative umbrella organization of local authorities from Africa, headquartered in 22, rue Essaadyine Hassan in Rabat, Morocco, where UCLG-A is recognized as an international pan-African organization of local governments, enjoying diplomatic status. UCLG-A represents Africa in the global organization of United Cities and Local Governments (UCLG), of which it is the regional chapter for Africa.

UCLG-A was created to achieve three basic goals:

- Promoting decentralization and the recognition of local governments as a level of governance has legal personality and political and financial autonomy;
- Strengthening the capacity of local governments to provide better services to the population, support and train the national associations of communities to better organize themselves to ensure an effective political dialogue with national governments, civil societies, the private sector partners development and the international community on the implementation and evaluation of decentralization and cooperation policies;
- Carrying the voice of local authorities of Africa and representing them on the the Pan-African and international scene.

At the request of its members, UCLG-A has set up the network of local elected women of Africa (REFELA) with the aim to contribute to a better accounting for of their concerns in the policies and strategies implemented by local authorities, and contribute to the promotion of women's leadership in political and administrative bodies of local authorities of Africa.

To this end, UCLG-A held from March 8 to March 11, 2011 in Tangiers, Morocco, the first Forum of Local Elected Women of Africa, after which was created the Locally elected African Women’s Network (REFELA). On the sidelines of the Forum was held the first general meeting of the Network that confirmed the position of the Network as a standing committee in charge of gender equality within UCLG Africa, has established the Executive Board of the network made up of 15 members (3 for each of the 5 regions of Africa), and elected the members of the Network’s Presidency (1 Vice President for each region) among whom the President was chosen. The term of the bodies is a three-year period, that is renewable. The General Assembly meets every three years on the sidelines of the Africities Summit work. The last meeting of the General Assembly of REFELA was held in Johannesburg in December 2015. This meeting elected a new Executive Board and a new presidency of the Network assigned to the City of Bagangté, Cameroon, represented by its Mayor, Mrs.
